For these portraits, it was the first time I ever took pictures using a reflector. It was fun to shoot these pictures because I got to play around with different types of reflectors. For these portraits, I used the gold reflector.

Motion was the first assignment we did in our class. It was a challenge, but I enjoyed it. I like to play tennis so I wanted to capture the motion of a tennis ball and a tennis racket.

Hammocks are fun and, relaxing. I liked this one because it was bright orange. There is so much more to things when you can see them from different angles.

Bannack

Also referred to as a ghost town, there is much history in this small town. Through every door you walk through, there is a story to tell. Many events happened in this town, in every room and through every door you walk through you can feel the presence of those who have passed along. This type of experience is unlike any other. Through every room is a new story being told.

Creativity is one of the first things we learned in our Digital Imaging class. Everyone has the ability to be creative even if they think they are not. The bottom picture was my first time doing light painting and it was fun! The pictures on the top left and right are ghost pictures that were taken in Ghost Town, Bannack.

GABRIELA GONZALES

I am from the Central Coast of California, so naturally I love being outside, and I love the beach! I am studying Advertising with a module in Visual Media. I knew very little about photography and Photoshop, however, I feel much more comfortable with a camera now that I know what the buttons do. I also have learned so much more about how to use Photoshop and Lightroom. It has been fun learning how to use these software's and edit my own pictures. I took all the pictures in this book and edited them through Lightroom and Photoshop. I aspire to continue learning more about the wonders of photography and I hope to continue taking pictures, even if it is just for fun.
